

A+ Fellows and Apprentice Fellows

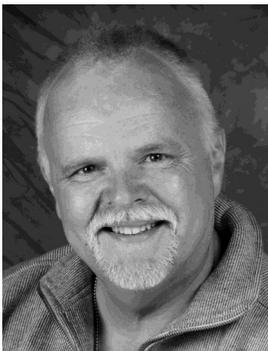

2016-17 Directory

Jan Adams studied ballet at the North Carolina School of the Arts. She danced with North Carolina Dance Theatre and was a dance captain for the National Tour of A Chorus Line, as well as a ballet mistress for the Ballet Theater of the Virgin Islands in St. Thomas. Jan has served in the a Visiting Artist Program in North Carolina and taught dance in various settings, including at the North Carolina School of the Arts, UNC Greensboro and several private dance studios. She has been teaching in the public schools for over 20 years and has recently renewed her National Board Certification as a middle childhood generalist. Jan currently teaches in Winston-Salem at the Arts Based School and at the North Carolina School of the Arts in the Preparatory Dance Program. Jan was named the N.C. Teacher of the Year for Charter Schools for 2013-14. She has been an A+ Fellow since 1995.

Kathy Angier is a graduate of the University of Tennessee, Knoxville, where she played volleyball for the Lady Vols and earned a B.S. in Physical Education. Kathy went on to obtain her dance education certification at UNC Charlotte. She has since taught and coached in western North Carolina and currently teaches P.E. and dance at Saluda Elementary and Tryon Elementary Schools. Kathy has been an A+ Fellow since 2007.

Joe Appleton is a retired kindergarten teacher and state employee. He taught in Durham Public Schools from 1994 to 2003 and 2011 to 2013. From 2003 to 2010 he was a state education program consultant for the N.C. Governor's More at Four pre-kindergarten program. Joe is currently an independent early childhood education consultant, providing training, technical assistance and other professional development to private and public preschool programs throughout N.C. He was an artist-in-residence for the Durham Arts Council's Creative Arts in the Public Schools (CAPS) program for eight years. Joe has been an actor and singer in the Durham area since 1981, performing with the North Carolina Theatre, Triangle Opera and Manbites Dog Theater (of which he was a co-founder). He was also a co-founder of The Scrap Exchange in Durham. Joe has been an A+ Fellow since 2014.

Joshua Batenhorst has been working in North Carolina in the field of theater and arts education since 2002. A teaching artist with organizations such as North Carolina Stage Company, Asheville Community Theatre and LEAF in Schools and Streets, Mr. Batenhorst (or "Capt. Josh" as he is known to his students) uses improvisation, play writing, storytelling and technical theater to teach students and teachers to communicate more clearly, think more creatively and critically, and to collaborate for success. A 2001 graduate of Southwestern University in Georgetown, Tex., Capt. Josh is currently the theater arts teacher and development specialist at ArtSpace Charter School in Swannanoa. He has been an A+ Fellow since 2007.

Michael Beadle is an A+ Fellow, poet, writer-in-residence, and author living in Raleigh, N.C. Since 1999, he has been facilitating staff development workshops for A+ Schools throughout North Carolina, and has taught workshops for A+ Schools in Michigan, Oklahoma and Iowa. A touring writer-in-residence, he teaches poetry, creative writing, performance poetry, and advertising workshops to students of all ages. He also serves as the student contest manager for the NC Poetry Society. Since 1998, Michael has been performing original, contemporary and classical poetry for schools, festivals, and special events. He is the author of three poetry chapbooks, a poetry CD, and four books on local history, including Haywood County: Portrait of a Mountain Community, which won the President's Award from the NC Society of Historians in 2010. A journalist for 15 years, Michael has published more than 1,500 articles for newspapers and magazines across the state.

Maggie Bennett has taught visual arts and dance for more than 25 years. She has a design degree from North Carolina State University College of Design and holds a K-12 teaching certification in visual arts. Maggie is currently teaching the three-dimensional arts at Martin Gifted and Talented Magnet Middle School in Raleigh, N.C. Additional past experiences include: writing visual arts curriculum for Wake County Public Schools magnet office, co-founder of Even Exchange Dance Theater, 200-hour certified yoga instructor, instructor at Arts Together, Inc., and adjunct faculty at Saint Mary's College. Maggie is currently an Apprentice Fellow.

Susie Bland is from High Point, N.C., and has been working for Guilford County Schools for over 25 years. Twenty-two of those years were spent at Parkview Elementary, one of the original A+ Schools, where she was the A+ coordinator for almost 15 years. Susie has been an A+ Fellow since 1996. She has a master's degree in elementary education and earned her National Board Certification in early childhood education. In addition, Susie has been actively involved in literacy programs, using Multiple Intelligences in the classroom and developing community involvement in schools. She loves technology, and her goal is to develop ways to use her iPad and Nook every day with her second grade students.

Beverly Botsford is a cross-cultural percussionist and educator who blends music, movement and spoken word in solo and ensemble presentations. Embracing drumming traditions of Africa, Cuba, Brazil and her native North Carolina, she celebrates more than 30 years of professional experience, performing, teaching and touring around the world. Highlights include 13 years of touring with Chuck Davis and the African American Dance Ensemble, serving on the American Dance Festival faculty and over a decade of global touring with jazz vocalist Nnenna Freelon in such venues as the Kennedy Center, the Hollywood Bowl and the Umbria Jazz Festival. A deeply committed educator and teaching artist, Beverly continues to share her passion for rhythm and culture with thousands of students and teachers in schools and community residencies, workshops and performances. She became an A+ Fellow in 2012.

Catie Burnette is originally from Goldsboro, North Carolina. She attended the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and graduated with a Bachelor of Arts in Education, specifically child development and family studies. Catie taught in rural Eastern North Carolina as a Teach for America Corps member and then relocated to Raleigh in 2012 where she taught for four years at Bugg Elementary, an original A+ school. Now she is completing her administrative internship at Washington Gifted and Talented Magnet Elementary School in Raleigh as she pursues her Masters in School Administration at North Carolina State University. Catie enjoys sharing her love of arts integration with her students and colleagues on a daily basis. She became an A+ Fellow in 2015.

Joan Certa-Moore is a veteran professional educator with a strong background in arts integration and creative movement for children. Joan was an A+ Fellow in the early years of the program and returned as a Fellow in 2012. She was instrumental in the program development of a K-8 museums magnet program in Raleigh, NC. She has been a teacher mentor with the N.C. Museum of Art's middle school project "The Art of Collaboration" and was a student at the Harvard Graduate School of Education weeklong institute "The Project Zero Classroom Views on Understanding." Joan has been a professional development coach using the Paideia methods of teaching for the past 15 years, and has been a member of the National Paideia Faculty since 2014. Joan believes that learning and teaching should take as many forms as there are learners and teachers.

Craig Cerveny is a cross categorical kindergarten (CCK) teacher at Douglas Creative Arts and Science Elementary School in Raleigh, N.C. Craig graduated from East Carolina University with a bachelor's degree in special education and a minor in psychology. After graduation, he spent two years working for a mental health company as a community based specialist professional. During this time, he provided interventions to children by implementing a specially designed treatment plan (much like an IEP) in the school, home and community. This experience helped him transition into his role as a special education teacher. He earned his National Board Certification in 2011. Craig is currently an Apprentice Fellow.

Sarah Chew is currently a K-5 science specialist at Brooks Elementary School in Raleigh where she has also taught first grade. In her role as a specialist, Sarah models for teachers how they can be museum curators and bring learning to life in their own classrooms. She incorporates movement, music, visual art and hands-on experiences into all of her science classes to make learning accessible to all students. Sarah received her B.A. in elementary education and history from Guildford College where she also minored in music. She has been an A+ Fellow since 2014.

KT Childress is originally from Knoxville, Tenn., and graduated from Austin Peay State University with a B.A. in theater and communication arts. She went on to complete a year-long study at the Dell'Arte International School of Physical Theatre in California where she discovered her love of masks and puppets. KT has worked as an artist in residence at Pocosin Arts Center creating giant parade puppets for Fall Festival. She has also worked as a teaching artist in Durham, Bertie, Dare and Currituck counties creating visual art, masks and puppets out of recyclable materials. KT became an A+ Fellow in 2013.

Bridget Cowan attended Barton College in Wilson, N.C., graduating with a B.S. in elementary education with a concentration in art. Bridget currently serves as the magnet coordinator and arts integration coach at Charles R. Bugg Creative Arts and Science Magnet Elementary, an A+ school. Bridget enjoys sharing her love of arts integration and technology with colleagues to help support their growth as arts integration educators. She encourages colleagues to focus on providing learning experiences for children which will help them to best learn the core content. She is currently working to launch Paint Spirits Bright, where you put the ART in pARTy. Bridget is currently an Apprentice Fellow.

Lori Cozzi has worked in education for over 25 years. She holds a B.S. in communications and a M.S. in arts education from Florida State University and holds a North Carolina teaching license in elementary education and art education. In addition, she holds National Board Certification in middle childhood education. Lori is currently the executive director of ArtSpace Charter School in Swannanoa, N.C. and has been an A+ Fellow since 1999. Lori also serves as an A+ Liaison.

Lola Davis-Jones has taught drama and dance in North Carolina public schools for more than 20 years. She is a graduate of UNC Greensboro in drama and dance. She is also certified in K-6 elementary education. Mrs. DJ, as her students call her, has been an A+ Fellow since the program's inception in 1995 promoting whole-school reform through arts integration to engage all children as lifelong learners. She has a wide range of experience professionally in directing, costuming and choreography. Her experience in collaborations with students and teachers turns her art forms into tools for learning.

David DiMuro is a National Board certified teacher and has been teaching elementary music for over 16 years. He has been a music educator for elementary, high school and collegiate levels. He currently teaches at Wrightsville Beach Elementary in Wilmington, N.C. David is certified in Orff Schulwerk and is passionate about Orff's philosophy of teaching the whole child. David is an active performer within the music world and also with improvisational theater. He has been a member of the "Nutt House Improv Troupe" for five years and has facilitated workshops for both children and adults on the joy and benefits of improv. After a brief hiatus, David returned as an A+ Fellow in 2015.

Paige Everett has been working with the A+ Schools Program as a classroom teacher and Fellow since 1995. Paige taught in the public school system for 10 years prior to her current position as a teaching instructor at East Carolina University where she teaches in the elementary and middle grades department. She is a North Carolina state certified teacher and is National Board certified. Paige has a master's degree from East Carolina University in elementary curriculum and a reading certification K-12. She has taught many courses in integrated curriculum, classroom management, instructional methods and classroom field experience. Additional experiences include curriculum coordination and developmental advising. Paige also serves as an A+ Liaison.

Lisa Ferrando grew up in the San Francisco Bay Area and earned her bachelor's degree from California State University, Chico. Lisa spent 18 months in Japan teaching English and immersing herself in Japanese culture. Upon returning to the United States, she earned a multiple subjects teaching credential. Since relocating to Raleigh, Lisa has taught dance, physical education, English as a second language and first grade in the Wake County public schools. Lisa has performed with Even Exchange Dance Theater, The Rainbow Dance Company, Meredith Dance Theatre and the Dance Project. Lisa is currently an Apprentice Fellow.

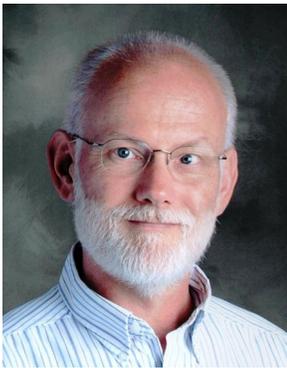

Carolyn Florence recently retired from teaching second grade at Douglas Creative Arts and Science Magnet Elementary, an A+ school in Raleigh. She is a National Board Certified teacher with a master's degree in reading. No matter what grade she is teaching, Carolyn's goal is to use the arts and each individual child's talents to help every student be successful, love to learn and have fun while doing it. Carolyn's passion has become planning lessons based on the Common Core Curriculum, especially math and language arts, that help students think and show what they learn in "out of the box" ways. In her free time she enjoys her family, singing, quilting, reading and writing. She was named the 2014 Gerry D. Howell A+ Educator of the Year. Carolyn became an A+ Fellow in 2013.

Alli George earned a B.S. in chemistry from Meredith College in Raleigh, N.C. Recently, she graduated from Gardner-Webb University with a master's degree in curriculum and instruction. She is certified in mathematics and science for grades 6-12. Alli taught at R.J. Reynolds High School in Winston-Salem for over 10 years and will begin teaching at Glenn High School in Kernersville in the fall of 2016. She was named the 2015 Gerry D. Howell A+ Educator of the Year. Alli is currently an Apprentice Fellow.

Rocio Gonzalez is originally from Colombia. Her love for music and dancing developed at a very early age. Rocio is an experienced North Carolina Wolf Trap teaching artist and also serves as a mentor and coach for new teaching artists. She trained in STEM residencies and is currently piloting STEM residencies in two Pre-K classrooms. Rocio has trained with the nationally recognized Lincoln Center Institute, the Kennedy Center Institute and continues to receive training from the Wolf Trap Center. She holds a B.S. from Gardner-Webb University and two associate degrees from Central Piedmont Community College. Rocio has been an A+ Fellow since 2014.

Dennis Hamrick grew up in western North Carolina and moved “down east” to attend East Carolina University, where he received a Bachelor of Music degree in education with a concentration in voice. He has lived and taught in Edgecombe County for more than 25 years, working with pre-kindergarteners to eighth graders. His assignments have included not only teaching music, but also leading others to understand and implement arts integration, teaching a direct-instruction reading program, tutoring math and science, and spearheading a leadership-based whole school reform. After the school day, Dennis teaches private voice and piano lessons in his home. In the summers, he is often designing and teaching workshops for children that integrate music and other arts with writing, reading, math and social studies. Dennis taught in one of the original A+ schools and began working as an A+ Fellow in 2007.

Mimi Herman has been an A+ Fellow since 1997. She is the director of the United Arts Council of Raleigh and Wake County’s Arts Integration Institute, an associate editor for Teaching Artist Journal, a teaching artist and a consultant. The author of The Art of Learning (N.C. Arts Council, 1998), Mimi has published poetry, stories and articles throughout the country. She holds a B.A. cum laude from UNC-Chapel Hill and an M.F.A. in creative writing from Warren Wilson College. Mimi has worked as an arts and education consultant since 1990, engaging over 25,000 students and teachers with writing residencies, as well as providing extensive professional development for teachers and teaching artists.

Daniel Johnson is professor of music education at the University of North Carolina Wilmington. He specializes in classroom music instruction, music listening and teachers' professional development. He has taught pre-K through college students in public, private and community-based schools in New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Arizona and North Carolina. Dan is a nationally certified music and movement instructor, having presented workshops and courses throughout the U.S. and abroad. He is a graduate of the New England Conservatory of Music, the University of Arizona and Emory University. He is also the principal tubist of the Long Bay Symphony and has performed with many other groups including the Wilmington Symphony Orchestra, the St. Louis Philharmonic Orchestra and numerous brass quintets. Dan became an A+ Fellow in 2013.

Marta King serves as the theater arts specialist at Powell GT Elementary School of the Visual and Performing Arts in Raleigh. She has an M.Ed. with a focus in literacy from UNC Chapel Hill and National Board Certification in literacy. Prior to teaching at Powell, Marta taught theater, dance and language arts at the middle and high school levels. For the past five years, she has worked with NC State University education majors on effectively using theater in the classroom. Additionally, Marta has taught acting at the N.C. School of the Arts, Interlochen Center for the Arts, as well as other venues. As an actor and director, she has worked for many years with theater companies she co-founded in Charlotte, Durham and Raleigh, and has toured the country performing poetry and teaching poetry performance workshops to teachers and students. Marta has been an A+ Fellow since 1995.

September Krueger is a fiber artist and printmaker from Wilmington, N.C. Her creative energy was invested for many years in a wearable art studio producing a line of women's silkscreened clothing. In 2007, she entered the M.F.A. program at East Carolina University to pursue a teaching career. September has provided fiber residencies in elementary and middle schools with a focus on culture and history, as well as public workshops in batik and silk painting. She is currently the art instructor for Southeastern Community College in Whiteville, N.C., and has served as an A+ Fellow since 2012.

Jef Lambdin resides in Lumberton, N.C. He performs mime, variety arts and mask theater at fairs and festivals throughout the Southeast as The InterACTIVE Theater of Jef. As an artist in education he teaches mime, mask, commedia, physical dynamics, variety arts, ensemble techniques and composition through educational residencies. From 1976 to 1993 Jef was a member of TOUCH, North Carolina's touring mime theater ensemble. From 1993 through 1997, Jef created the role of and performed as the mascot for the Durham Bulls Baseball Club, Wool E. Bull. Jef has been an A+ Fellow since 2005.

Steve Lipe is the instructional technology coordinator at ArtSpace Charter School in Swannanoa, N.C. He has been a teacher at ArtSpace since the school opened in 2001. He holds a B.S. in recreational resources administration from NC State University, an M.A. in communication studies from the University of North Carolina at Greensboro, and an M.L.S. media specialist degree from Appalachian State University. Steve completed his teaching certification at the University of North Carolina at Asheville. With more than 25 years of teaching experience, he holds North Carolina professional licensure in K-6 general education, K-12 computer science and K-12 media library science. Steve has presented workshops on integrated technology in educational settings at local, state and national conferences and has been an A+ Fellow since 2012.

Christina Lohry holds a master's degree in both dance therapy and education and is a certified Brain Gym instructor/consultant. She has a certificate in arts integrated education from Naropa University and taught dance at Benton Heights Elementary School of the Arts for eight years, an A+ school in Monroe, N.C. During that time, she was named the 2012 Gerry D. Howell A+ Educator of the Year. She is currently an upper elementary Montessori teacher. Christina co-founded The Shambhala School in Canada, an arts integrated school, as well as the Enki Education Arts Integrated Teacher Training Program. For more than 25 years she has been teaching students, teachers and parents various avenues for education, health and well-being that include yoga, arts integration, Tai Chi, Brain Gym/Educational Kinesiology and sensory integration. Christina has been an A+ Fellow since 2012.

Glenda Mackie was awarded a scholarship to Tisch School of the Arts, NYU where she received her B.F. A. in dance. She then returned to her hometown of Raleigh where she served as dance director at Arts Together, Inc. for almost 20 years and directed the Rainbow Dance Company from 1990 to 2004. During this time she was an adjunct teacher at Meredith College, Duke University and choreographed musicals for North Carolina Theatre and Raleigh Little Theatre, to name a few. She was a founding member of the collaborative Even Exchange Dance Theater and performed with the improvisational quartet THEM. She followed her passion for arts education and taught dance and whole body wellness at Enloe High School in Raleigh from 2007 to 2016. Her love of movement has allowed her to dance with many inspiring people and fueled extensive study in contact improvisation, Body Mind Centering, Feldenkrais technique, Alexander technique and Tai Chi. An advocate for wellness, Glenda recently completed her second 200-hour yoga training and is a RYT200 certified yoga teacher. She has been an A+ Fellow since 2014.

Gussie Marshallsea is a visual arts educator. She has experience teaching in elementary, middle and high schools in Australia and in the U.S. She is currently the visual arts teacher at Pleasant Grove Elementary in Wake County. Gussie enjoys designing and teaching creative and innovative lessons that reinforce a multi disciplinarian approach to learning and teaching. She currently serves on the board for Arts Access, a non-profit dedicated to make the arts accessible to people with disabilities. Gussie's recent illustrations included a children's book cover. She is currently illustrating another book for a local artist in the Raleigh area. She became an A+ Fellow in 2015.

Lisa Milliken is the arts integration coach and AIG specialist at Douglas Creative Arts and Science Elementary, an A+ school in Raleigh. She is a National Board Certified teacher who has masters' degrees in elementary education and educational leadership. Lisa became an A+ fellow in 1996 while working at Bugg Creative Arts and Science Elementary, one of the original A+ schools in North Carolina. She was selected as a teacher scholar to participate in the National Endowment for the Humanities Summer Institute Power of Place where she worked with a group of educators from around the country to write lesson plans for the Endowment's EdSITEment website. Lisa is working with the N.C. Department of Public Instruction on a task force to design measures of student learning for non-tested grades and subjects. Lisa also serves as an A+ Liaison.

Karen Morris graduated summa cum laude from UNC Greensboro, where she earned a B.S. in intermediate education and was a North Carolina Teaching Fellows Scholar. She holds certifications in special education (K-12), mathematics (K-12), and elementary education. Karen currently serves as the arts magnet director at RJ Reynolds High School (her alma mater) in Winston-Salem and was selected 2016 Magnet Teacher of the Year for Winston-Salem/Forsyth County Schools. She played an instrumental role in RJR's implementation of a 2006 MSAP grant and its transition from a traditional high school to an Arts for Academics Magnet School. Karen authored RJR's successful application to become a Kennedy Center School of Excellence in 2013 and a Magnet Schools of America School of Distinction in 2014. Karen became an A+ Fellow in 2015 and also serves as an A+ Liaison.

Tom Nevels is a curriculum designer, teacher and theater artist based in Durham, N.C. Tom holds an M.A. in theater education from Emerson College, a B.F.A. in theater education from UNC Greensboro, and is a North Carolina Teaching Fellows alumnus. For 12 years, Tom taught K-12 theater in N.C. Public Schools across the state. Since 1999, he has also spent the majority of his summers on the curriculum and instruction staff at UNC Greensboro All-Arts, Science and Technology Camp. Tom enjoys leading workshops for teachers and serving as a guest teaching artist for students whenever possible. In his spare time, Tom enjoys travel, photography and musical theater. Tom joined the A+ Schools Program as a Fellow in 2012.

David Novak lives in Asheville where he is a teaching artist for the Asheville City Schools' TAPAS initiative. A National Storytelling Network Circle of Excellence storyteller, David is a featured teller at the National Storytelling Festival and festivals across the country and abroad, from Hong Kong to the Czech Republic. He was Master Storyteller on the opening team for the Disney Institute at Walt Disney World and touring artist for the L.A. Music Center and Lincoln Center Institute. David is also an adjunct instructor in the graduate storytelling program at East Tennessee State University and performance review editor for the journal Storytelling, Self, and Society. David has been an A+ Fellow since 2014.

Rebecca Nussbaum, a flutist by training, is also an arts administrator and educator. In 2004, Rebecca was able to bring her love of performance and education together through researching, designing and developing the Open Dream Ensemble for which she is the general manager. In addition to her work with Open Dream and the A+ Schools Program, Rebecca is a teaching artist, chamber music coach and flute teacher. She has been a member of the Chamber Orchestra of Philadelphia, the Opera Festival of New Jersey and the Amarillo Symphony. Rebecca has performed solo and chamber music recitals in a variety of venues including the Japanese Embassy, the Arts Club of D.C. and the Banff Centre for the Arts. Rebecca has been an A+ Fellow since 2007.

Michelle Pearson makes dances with people of all ages and abilities including veterans, retired nuns, preschoolers, politicians and professional dancers. She was a core member of Liz Lerman Dance Exchange for many years leading residencies and dance events around the country. In N.C., she collaborated with Raleigh's Even Exchange Dance Theater and is the current artistic curator of Black Box Dance Theatre. She has been a guest artist and adjunct faculty at numerous schools including Meredith College, Catholic University, American University, St. Mary's School, Wake County Public Schools, The American Dance Festival, Peace College, Arts Together and her alma mater, East Carolina University. Recently, Michelle led a pilot healing arts course for graduate neurology students at Harvard Medical School. She was recognized by the N.C. Arts Council with a Choreographic Fellowship in 2002 -2004 and was selected by the U.S. Department of State to lead cultural diplomacy missions in both Sierra Leone and China. Michelle is a William Friday Fellow committed to improving human relations in the state of North Carolina... and what better way to do that than in our schools! Michelle became an A+ Fellow in 2015.

Andrea Perrone is the music specialist at Olive Chapel Elementary School in Apex, N.C. She earned a B.M. in music education with a vocal concentration from Ithaca College in New York. Andrea taught K-12 music in Washington County for two years as a member of Teach for America; she then relocated to Raleigh, in 2014. Andrea is also a member of Jaded Vocals, a Raleigh-Durham based a cappella group that has performed on the main stage at SPARKcon in downtown Raleigh and at the Carolina Theater of Durham. Andrea is currently an Apprentice Fellow.

Diane Petteway is currently the choral music teacher at Daniels Middle School in Raleigh. She began her work with the A+ Schools Program in 1998 as a music teacher at Bugg Elementary and became an A+ Fellow in 1999. Diane is also a trainer and school evaluator for the International Baccalaureate Middle Years Programme and teaches music curriculum workshops internationally for the IB. She has also worked as adjunct staff at the North Carolina Center for the Advancement of Teaching (NCCAT) on both Cullowhee and Ocracoke campuses. Diane specializes in arts integration (from the perspectives of both arts and core teacher), cultural relevancy, deepening inquiry, global connections and student engagement.

Byron "Bo" Reece has been teaching in North Carolina public schools since 1993. Bo holds a bachelors and masters in music education from Appalachian State University. Bo has been presenting workshops in music education integration for the past two decades. He has completed levels work in Orff Schulwerk and World Music Drumming. He is a contributing author for the North Carolina Symphony education concert series. He teaches at Washington Gifted and Talented Magnet Elementary School in Raleigh, North Carolina. Bo is currently an Apprentice Fellow.

Sara Ridings has been teaching in North Carolina public schools since 1987, specializing in using creative movement and dance to teach all subject matter, although teaching science through dance is her favorite. She currently teaches at Douglas Elementary Creative Arts and Science Magnet School in Raleigh, an A+ school which was named top magnet school in the nation by Magnet Schools of America in 2016. Sara's background includes a B.S. in dance education and psychology from the University of North Carolina at Greensboro and an M.Ed. in curriculum and instruction, integrated teaching through the arts, from Lesley University. She has licensure in dance K-12, elementary preK-6 and recently renewed her National Board Certification as a middle childhood generalist. Sara first experienced the A+ philosophy as a participant at a 5-day Institute as her school joined the A+ network in 2000 and went on to become an A+ Fellow in 2003.

Peter Shanahan joined the A+ Schools Program as a Fellow in 2012. As a member of the Open Dream Ensemble, he has conducted teaching artist residencies for students and can be seen in The Adventures of the Open Dream Ensemble, the first educational web series for kids. As a professional flutist, Peter frequently performs with the Winston-Salem Symphony and is a member of the Western Piedmont Symphony and Carolina Chamber Symphony. He is on faculty at Radford University and the Virginia Governor's School for the Arts. Peter received a Master of Music from Indiana University and Bachelor of Music from the University of North Carolina School of the Arts.

Kristin Smith is currently the project director for the North Carolina Museum of Art's Big Picture Educator Enrichment Program, a statewide professional development program that helps teachers make connections across subjects through art. Previously, she developed professional development opportunities for educators across N.C. as statewide educator for Big Picture. Her workshops focused on visual literacy, concept-based learning, STEAM and collaborative planning. She has also developed programming for pre-k through teen audiences as the museum's Youth and Family Programs Coordinator. Prior to her museum education work, Kristin was a high school visual arts teacher and part of the founding faculty for the Bronx Lab School. She holds an M.A. in art education with teaching certification from Teachers College, Columbia University. Kristin became an A+ Fellow in 2015.

Claire Spence has a B.A. in elementary education and a M.Ed. in special education early childhood education, both from UNC Charlotte. She has taught many different elementary grade levels in various schools across the state. She has also visited and worked with the renowned Reggio Emilia schools in Italy and observed math lessons in Singapore. Currently, Claire teaches kindergarten at ArtSpace Charter School located in Swannanoa, N.C. In 2013, She received the A. Craig Scholarship from the North Carolina Center for the Advancement of Teaching (NCCAT). Claire is a member of the 2014 Governor's Teacher Network, which is currently developing and conducting research on dramatic play in kindergarten. She has been an AmeriCorps Project POWER Member since 2013. Claire became an A+ Fellow in 2015.

Alice Spickard holds masters degrees in elementary education and counseling. She first fell in love with the A+ Schools Program when her children attended an A+ elementary school. After 10 years as an A+ parent, Alice went to work in that same A+ elementary school as a magnet program coordinator and intervention teacher. In this role, she had the opportunity to work as a champion of arts integration, education and exposure for her school community. Currently, Alice continues to encourage creative teaching and learning as an educational consultant, Apprentice Fellow and A+ Liaison.

Kristen Terry graduated from Bennett College in Greensboro, N.C. In 2007, she joined the staff of Charles R. Bugg Creative Arts and Science A+ Magnet School in Raleigh, where she was introduced to the A+ Network and arts integration. During her time at Bugg, she taught kindergarten through third grade as well as took on leadership roles as A+ and magnet coordinator. Kristen obtained her master's degree in curriculum and instruction with a specialization in arts integration from Lesley University. At present, she is serving on the literacy team at New Hope Elementary School in Chapel Hill. Kristen is currently an Apprentice Fellow.

Melinda Waegerle is an assistant professor at UNC Greensboro. Her work focuses on dance education and integration across the curriculum. Melinda earned her B.S. and M.A. in dance education at UNC Greensboro and has facilitated professional development of educators in North Carolina, Oklahoma, Arkansas, North Dakota, South Dakota and Michigan. She is interested in developing enriched assessment practices and working with K-12 educators. Melinda is an original A+ Fellow.

Carrie Wagner is a photographer, author and global teaching artist. She uses her 20 years of international experience to inspire and engage audiences in authentic cultural discovery and experiential service learning. A N.C. native, Carrie has worked in N.C. schools as a teaching artist and teacher trainer for 10 years. She has lived in Uganda, South Africa, Peru and Ecuador, and has traveled in over 25 countries. Sharing visual stories from her book Village Wisdom and two photography exhibitions, Portraits of Uganda and Andean Faces, Sacred Spaces, Carrie teaches visual literacy, 21st century skills and cultural competency. Carrie is a certified Cultural Intelligence Facilitator, an outreach specialist for UNC World View and a global speaker for Melibee Global Consulting. She has a B.S. in environmental and visual design from NC State University. Carrie has been an A+ Fellow since 2014.

Kevin Warner is chair and associate professor in the Department of Theatre and Dance at Appalachian State University in Boone, N.C. Previously, he served as the director of both the Interdisciplinary Arts for Children Program and Hunter Institute on Young Children at the State University of New York College at Brockport. He is certified in dance (PreK-12) in both New York and North Carolina and has taught both dance and 3rd grade in public school settings. Kevin served as program director for North Carolina's A+ Schools Program from 2004-2008 and returned as an A+ Fellow and A+ Liaison in 2015.

Heather Barto Wiley is a National Board Certified teacher who has been teaching English at R.J. Reynolds High School in Winston-Salem since 2004. Her passion is film reading which she uses in her classroom to help her students build essential literacy skills. Heather is also a dancer who performs Bollywood, Flamenco, Samba and belly dance with a local dance troupe. She loves the arts and enjoys thinking of new ways to integrate them in her daily lesson plans. Heather is a 2003 graduate of Manchester University in Indiana, and is a native of Northern Michigan. Heather is currently an Apprentice Fellow.

Emily Wike holds a theater education degree from UNC Greensboro. After graduating, she taught theater at Davenport Elementary, an A+ School, for six years and became an A+ Fellow in 2003. Currently, Emily is teaching at Sandy Ridge Visual and Performing Arts Magnet School in Durham, N.C.

Gideon Young is a native of Connecticut. He earned a master's degree in elementary education from North Carolina State University and bachelor's in literature from the University of Connecticut. Gideon is a member of the Carolina African American Writers' Collective and Carrboro Poets Council, and his poetry has appeared in numerous publications such as Backbone Press, Carve Magazine, Obsidian: Literature in the African Diaspora, Spillway, among others. He is a Title 1 elementary reading teacher and literacy specialist for Orange County Schools and an instructor for Duke Young Writers' Camp. Gideon is currently an Apprentice Fellow.

Susan Zelasky has been teaching music since 1988 and has taught at Douglas Elementary Creative Arts and Science Magnet School, an A+ school in Raleigh, since 2003. She is nationally board certified in early and middle music education. Susan is a two-time presenter at the Magnet Schools of America Conference and also presented at the statewide A+ Conference in Greensboro prior to becoming an A+ Fellow in 2012. She just recently created music lessons for the 2015-2016 Education Concerts given by the NC Symphony.